

FEATURE DESTINATION – GERMANY

Germany wears its riches well: elegant big-city charm, pagan-inspired harvest festivals, a wealth of art and culture and the perennial pleasures of huge tracts of forest are all there to be enjoyed. But Germany's history, both recent and still in the making, weighs heavily. No visitor will remain untouched by this country's complex past and the way it affects the nation today.

Population: 82 million

Currency: Deutschmark (DM), Euro

Capital city: Berlin (pop: 3.4 million)

Language: German

Area: 357,000 sq km

What will the weather be like?

The German climate is variable so it's best to be prepared for all types of weather throughout the year. That said, the most reliable weather is from May to October.

This coincides, naturally enough, with the standard tourist season (except for skiing). The shoulder periods can bring fewer tourists and surprisingly pleasant weather. There is no special rainy season.

The Eastern Region

Each state in this area has a rich past, including thousand-year-old castles and beautiful natural landscapes. Eastern Germany provides beaches along the Baltic coast, thick forests in Thuringia and the Erzgebirge Mountains in Saxony.

The Northern Region

Hamburg is known as the "Venice of the North," thanks to its 2,000 bridges. The North lies along the North Sea coast, and has a rich sailing history.

The Western Region

Germany's oldest city, Trier, is found in the western region. Dusseldorf is a cosmopolitan city on the Rhine, while Frankfurt am Main has Europe's largest airport and is the home of the new European Central Bank.

The Southern Region

The Alps are found here. Munich is a modern urban area that treasures its Baroque churches, theaters, museums, and orchestras, as well as Oktoberfest. You can also find the lovely Black Forest in Stuttgart.

We offer Cars, Motorhomes & Canal Boats in Germany

STAFF PROFILE

Tracey Emmerton – Reservations Manager

Tracey Emmerton hails from Port Elizabeth, South Africa. Tracey and her family moved to Australia 5 years ago wanting a better life for their children. She started at Eliza Travel in 1997 as a Senior Consultant and is now the Reservations Manager. Prior to working at Eliza Travel, Tracey spent 14 years in the travel industry in South Africa where she built up her travel knowledge by travelling around the world.

Tracey loves her job and thrives on finding the absolute best deal for travellers. She loves collecting the letters, Thank You cards and postcards her happy clients send her and some clients have become her good friends. In fact, she still corresponds with a Japanese client she met and helped 13 years ago.

Tracey lives near the beach in Mordialloc with her husband and two children and her hobbies include reading, cooking & baking, playing scrabble and alternative medicine.
